ProQuest Dissertations & Theses Citation Index on the Web of Science

The ProQuest™ Dissertations & Theses Citation Index is a standalone database on the Web of Science platform that provides discovery of records sourced from ProQuest Dissertations & Theses (PQDT).

Research has shown that the majority of experimental details, innovative methodologies, and comprehensive datasets found in dissertations and theses do not make their way into the published literature. With the addition of ProQuest Dissertations & Theses Citation Index to the Web of Science platform, we are broadening the view of each research field and making it easier to locate innovative research that was never published in a scholarly journal.

Search

1. On the Web of Science Documents search, search the ProQuest Dissertations & Theses Citation Index by opening the Search in drop down menu and choosing ProQuest™ Dissertations & Theses Citation Index.

2. Run your search.

Filter

3. On the results page, select filters you want to include.

- a. Degree Type and Dissertation and Thesis Subjects are unique to the ProQuest Dissertations & Theses Citation Index. Dissertation and Thesis Subjects matches indexing from ProQuest Dissertations and theses.

View full text

5. If your institution subscribes to ProQuest Dissertations & Theses, you can access the full text of a thesis or dissertation by clicking on View Full Text on ProQuest from the results or full record pages.

The screenshot shows two side-by-side panels. The left panel is a search result card for a dissertation titled "Trends in snow water equivalent in Rocky Mountain National Park and the northern Front Range". It lists the author as Glenn G. Patterson, 2016, from Colorado State University. A button labeled "View Full Text on ProQuest" is highlighted with a red box. The right panel is the full record page for the same dissertation, showing the title, author, and a button labeled "View Full Text on ProQuest" also highlighted with a red box.

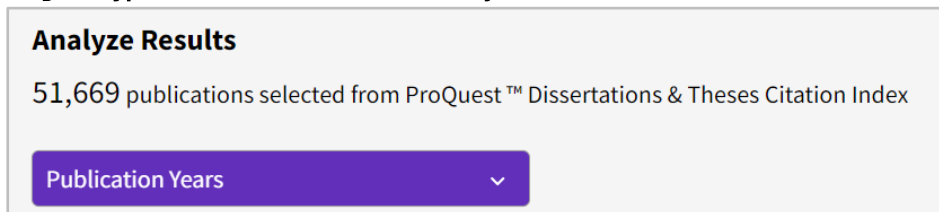

Analyze Results

6. You can analyze and view visualizations for your search results by clicking Analyze Results next to the search box at the top of the results page.

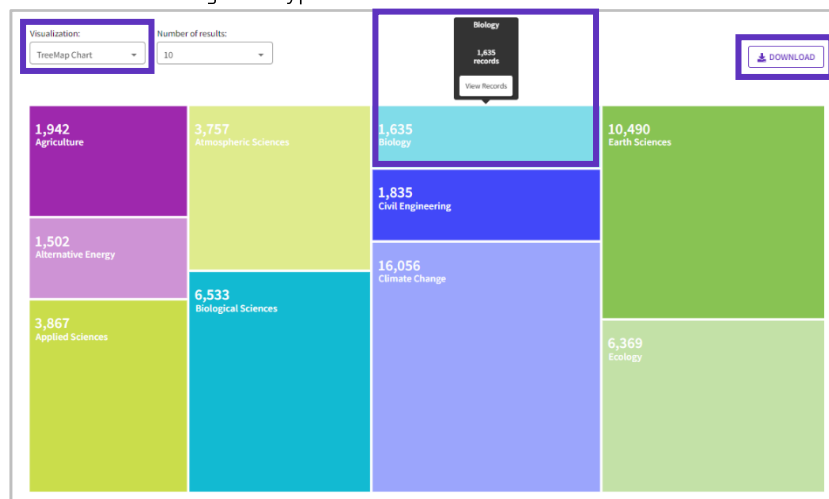

The screenshot shows the top of the ProQuest search results page. It displays "51,669 results from ProQuest™ Dissertations & Theses Citation Index for:" followed by a search box containing "climate change (Topic)". To the right of the search box are two buttons: "Analyze Results" and "Create Alert". The "Analyze Results" button is highlighted with a red box.

7. At the top of the Analyze Results page, open the drop-down menu to select one of the options, such as Degree Type, Dissertation and Thesis Subject, Institution, or Research Areas.

8. After you select an option, you can interact with and download visualizations, such as this example showing Dissertation and Thesis Subject.
 - a. When you click on one of the boxes in a TreeMap chart, you'll see an option to View Records.
 - b. You can also change the type of Visualization.

9. Further down the page, you can view and download the same data in a table format.
