Defining your audience

What if your next marketing message could reach just the right people in order to drive conference attendance, support new subscriptions, or increase submissions?

Target your audience by:

Source journals
Authors who have published within specific journals

Cited journals
Authors who have cited articles in specific journals

Keywords
Authors of papers where the keywords are listed in the title, keyword, or abstract field

Organization name
Authors of papers where particular terms are in the organization field

Email domain
Authors with specific email domains (i.e. "@universityXYZ.edu")

Topics/interests
Pre-built lists by our research teams

Subject categories
Authors with papers published in journals of a specific Web of Science subject category

Articles
A customized list of authors based on a specific paper you provide

Aims and scope
A customized list using the aims and scopes that you provide

Funding/funders
Authors who have received funding from specific organizations
More ways to target your audience:

Keywords in journals

What more you can do with your campaign:

Countdown timer
Include a dynamic countdown timer (set to end at a particular date/time) on your email

Email preview text
You control the message displayed in the preview line of the recipient’s inbox

Responsive design
Your email adapts to the size of the device on which your recipient views the email

Optimized send
Campaigns can be deployed at optimized times based on either a recipient’s past engagement or time zone

HTML creation
Provide your message content and have a custom HTML creative layout assembled

Poll questions
See real time results for poll questions

E-tracker on mobile
Track your campaigns on your smart phone

Reblast
Send a second email to the same audience after 5 days & only change the subject line

Local language
Send a subject line or entire content body in native language

Dynamic campaign
Create a highly customized email campaign using dynamic content

Opens/non-opens and clicks/non-clicks
Target previous recipients of your campaigns who have taken or not take action

Pre-populated landing page
When a recipient follows the CTA, their information (i.e. - name, email address) is pre-populated in the form
