

At Clarivate, we know the value and importance of protecting your valuable brands. As such, we take great care in the development and protection of our trademarks and reserve all rights of ownership in our trademarks.

Trademark Notice

Clarivate and its logo, as well as all other trademarks used herein are trademarks of their respective owners and used under license.

Fair Use Guidelines

"Fair use" of Clarivate trademarks, that is, use by a third party without express permission or license, is limited to text-only references to Clarivate trademarks such as product and service names, and excludes Clarivate logos. In such references, you must be truthful, must not disparage Clarivate and must not mislead the public. You must be clear and accurate as to the nature of the relationship between Clarivate and your company, its products, and its services. You may not use Clarivate trademarks in a manner which could cause confusion as to Clarivate sponsorship, affiliation or endorsement.

Except as stated above, Clarivate trademarks may not be used by third parties without express permission. To obtain permission, please contact us:

General Usage

Proper use of Clarivate trademarks reinforces their role as brands for our products and services, and helps prevent them from becoming generic names that can be used by anyone. By adhering to the following rules, you help protect our trademarks:

- Attributions – When a Clarivate product or service is mentioned in communications, ownership by Clarivate must be attributed in a footnote either on the page/screen where the Clarivate trademark is used, or in the legal section of the communication or site in which it is referenced.

Example attribution lines:

Source: Clarivate

Source: Data provided by Clarivate

Source: Cortellis Clinical Trials Intelligence from Clarivate

Source: Data from Web of Science, provided by Clarivate

- Logos - Do not create any new logo for Clarivate or Clarivate products or services.
- Names - Do not incorporate any Clarivate product or service names into your company's product names. Do not connect your company name with Clarivate product or service names.
- Domains - Do not incorporate any Clarivate names into any internet root domains or subdomains owned by your company.
- Taglines - Do not use the Clarivate taglines.
- Consistency - Alterations of the approved Clarivate trademarks are not allowed, for example:
 - Do not change the form or representation of the product name, including misspelling, capitalization or punctuation.
 - Do not abbreviate or incorrectly capitalize Clarivate trademarks.
 - Do not use the Clarivate trademark name for a product or service as a noun or verb, in the possessive form (for example, Clarivate's) or in the plural form unless the trademark itself appears in that form.

Domain Names

Do not use Clarivate (or any Clarivate product or service name) or potentially confusing variations of our names in your internet domain name. This helps prevent internet users from being confused as to whether you or Clarivate is the source of the Web site.

Open Source Software

Most open source licenses do not grant, and many exclude, a license of trademark rights. Do not assume you can use the name of a source code base in the name of your distribution developed from that code base. Without a license or permission, you may not incorporate Clarivate trademarks in the name of your distribution or other products that incorporate open source elements. Truthful statements incorporating a trademark are generally allowed (for example, in the format "MyImplementation, derived from Trademarked ProductName"), but you should check the terms of the license for the original source code or any posted trademark guidelines for the project.
