Filing for Patents

Patents are granted if the subject is defined as being a product or a process that is new, useful, involves an inventive step and has an industrial or an agricultural application.

Application may be made, in English and Hebrew, by whomever states that he is the owner of the invention where the owner may be the inventor himself or a person deriving the title from the inventor.

Under the International Convention applications claiming priority must be filed within 12 months of earliest filing in a Convention country. Priority must be claimed within two months of filing of the Israeli application and must be supported by priority documents (filed within one year from the filing of the application).

The application is examined as to novelty. However, as of 02.10.1989, an applicant who has obtained a parallel patent in the USA, the UK, the EPO, Germany, Austria, Sweden, Norway, Denmark or the Netherlands may request that the patent office accept his Israeli application without substantive examination as to novelty, provided the claims are identical to those in the parallel patent.

Certain details are published a few months after the filing of the patent application in the official Patents and Designs Journal. No specification is printed after examination. An announcement of acceptance is published in the official journal. The bibliographic details of all applications are published in the official journal.

An opposition may be filed within three months of the date of publication.
