Kinds of Protection

Patents of Invention	Granted for a term of 20 years from the earliest filing date. For filings before 8 June 1995, the term is 17 years from grant if longer.
Extensions	Extensions of up to five years where there were delays in issuing patent due to an interference processing, a successful appellate review or a secrecy order. Extensions are also available to the holders of patents for human drugs, food or color additives, medical devices, animal drugs, and veterinary biological products to restore to the terms of those patents some of the time lost while awaiting premarket government approval from a regulatory agency

Convention & Treaty Membership

Patent Cooperation Treaty	24.01.1978
Signatory of:	Paris Convention (Stockholm wording) Budapest Treaty World Intellectual Property Organization International Convention for the Protection of New Varieties of Plants

Filing for Patents

Inventions granted utility patents include new, imperceptible and useful processes, machines, manufacture, or compositions of matter. Inventions granted design patents include new, original and instinctive design for articles of manufacture. Plant patents are granted to distinct and new varieties of plants. Computer programs may also be protected by patent.

Applications may be made, in English, by the inventor, a person authorized by the inventor or the inventor's legal successor.

Applications claiming priority must be filed within 12 months of the earliest filing date in a foreign country. A certified copy of the first application must be submitted within six months of filing in the United States.

Applications are classified according to subject matter and its examination occurs in regular order of filing. A paper is considered to be filed as of its date of receipt by the USPTO. Applications are examined as to novelty and the results of the examination are communicated to the applicant in writing. If on examination a patent is granted, a notice of allowance is sent to the applicant.

Patent applications are published 18 months after priority unless granted before then or if they are the subject of a secrecy order. Exceptionally, an applicant who does not intend to apply for a patent in another country for the same invention may file a nonpublication request which prevents publication of the application. All patents are published upon grant.

A request for Post Grant Review may be filed within nine months of grant.

For patent applications filed on or after 16 March 2013, precedence is given to the First Inventor to File, rather than the First to Invent as previously.

Lengthy sequence listings that are not completely included in the US patent specifications are available in electronic form from the USPTO web site: <https://seqdata.uspto.gov/>
