Unique customization

Promote the research office’s value by seamlessly integrating Pivot-RP into your institution’s workflow.

Customize Pivot-RP to integrate it into your research office offerings

Easily customize the Pivot-RP interface to reflect your institution’s logo, branding and color scheme. These customization options will also be reflected across newsletters, funding alert emails, and internal and limited submission opportunities to help you better promote your services to faculty, researchers and other stakeholders. In addition, customize the right column with text, links and images to promote your research office.

Curate lists and searches to the most relevant funding

Save researchers time and effort by presenting curated lists of funding opportunities and prescoped searches to guide users to the most relevant content for their specific research interests. Easily include links to curated lists and searches in emails, newsletters, department web pages, social media, or any other communication channels.

Embed search results to boost visibility

Embed Pivot-RP funding search results directly on department or research office web pages, allowing users to see opportunities of interest without having to log in to Pivot-RP.
Target the right researchers with public and private groups

Researchers can create private groups of users to share funding information with frequent collaborators. Admins can also set up public interest groups on any topic and make them visible to all users at their institution. Users can then self-subscribe to be included in newsletters, sharing of opportunities, and other communications that may be relevant to the group.

Automate communications with newsletters

Newsletters are a great way to send highly targeted communications to specific groups of users. Pivot-RP administrators can scale their reach by setting-up weekly, biweekly or monthly newsletters that will always deliver the most current funding opportunities to relevant audiences with minimal effort.

Use in-app announcements to deliver special messages

Create announcements for users at your institution that will appear at the top of the screen whenever a user logs in to Pivot-RP. This is a great way to reinforce important information about the research office or remind users about internal deadlines, resources, or procedures to apply for funding.
Add internal funding opportunities

Add and publish internal funding opportunities, set internal deadlines, and add notes to opportunities. Users can find internal funding alongside other external funding opportunities all in the same tool.

Clarivate provides world class support and training to help research administrators scale their efforts to efficiently maximize access to funding opportunities.
